THE SECOND PART

To the right Wor.ll
his much honoured Friend.
Sr WALTER EARLE
Knight.
These are the first Fruits Sr of a Tree planted by your owne Hand:
my Endeavours have beene to make them pleasant, and profitable, but it rests in you alone to render them happie, which you will, if you honour them with your Acceptation, and continue mee in Quality of Your most humble Servant.
James Hodder.

Writing is a transcendent facultie, vpon wᶜʰ all Arts, and Sciences dependᵉ, it is neither Mechanicall nor Liberall, yet mounts to the meritt of a commendacon beyond both, therforᵉ manifest yᵉ prudence in yᵉ speedie attainement of so commendable a Qualitie.

Lamentable is their Condition whose undisciplined Education leaves them unfurnished of skill to spend their time in anie Implovment that may be to their owne
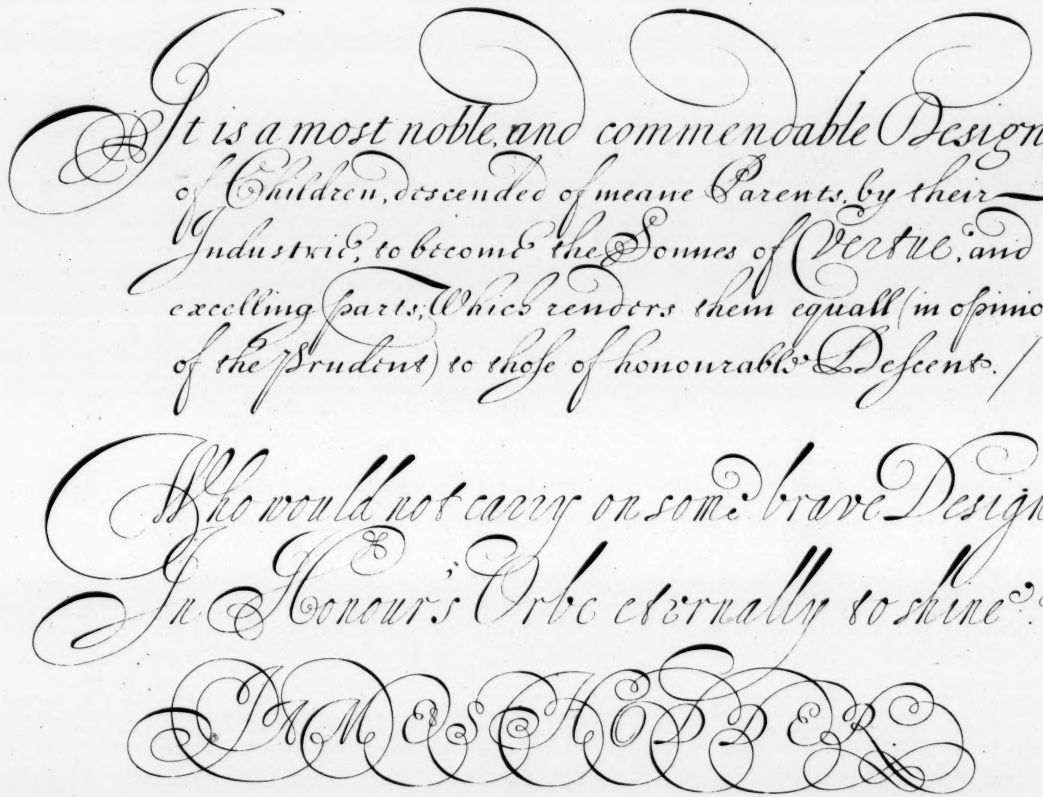
com fort, and encouragement, and honour of their Creato:

How many might to true perfection climbe
Were they not there in thought before the time!

JAMES HODDER



It is a most noble, and commendable Designe of Children, descended of meane Parents, by their Industrie, to become the Sonnes of Vertue, and excelling parts; Which renders them equall (in opinion of the Prudent) to those of honourable Descents.
Who would not carry on some brave Designe
In Honour's Orbe eternally to shine?
IAMES HOPER

Seven a hundred yeares in Earths best pleasures;
and after that, a hundred more; to whom being spent adds a thousand, and to that ten thousand more; the last shall as surely end as the first are ended, and all shall be swallowed with Eternity.

Incomparable Excellencies are produced by Industry;
No Starre in the Spheare of Wisdome out shines it:
by that men become famous, and raise permanent Monuments, remaining to their immortall Renowne.
By frequent Exercise men learne, and know -
How through Arts puzling Labyrinths to goe:

Hippomanes ceased to runne when shee had gotten the Goale: Hercules to labour when he had obtained the Victorie: Mercury to pipe when he had cast Argus into a Slumber: Every Motion hath his end.

Convenient and very commendable is the Practise of Ingenious and Eminent men to have correspondence and communication one with another: for that begetts Emulation which is a Spurre to Vertue &c.

If men could imagine how many Inconveniences attend Indiscretion Wisdome would be more in estimation.

Vexation and Anguish accompanie Riches and Honour:
The Pomp of the World and the favour of the People are but Smoake, suddenly vanishing which if they commonly please, commonly bring Repentance and for a moment of Joy, they bring an Age of Sorrow.

A common Designe it is of mighty Men to rayse huge Structures but the commemoration of some vertuous performance by a meane Person shall be more permanent than the most magnificent Monuments raysed by Monarchs.

Cease not to Learne vntill thou cease to liue:
Count that day lost wherein thou canst no Letter,
But still gaine something that new grace may giue
And render thee more Learned Wise & Better.
James Hodder

Grim, Vertue-hating Envy doth invade Workes breathing to Eternitie, and cast
Upon the fairest Peece the greatest shade:
Still driving Vesuvs rarest Fruits to blast.
By petty Starres her black infection cunnes,
None suffer her Eclipse, but Moones & Sunnes.
James Hodder

Doe not always stand upon the nice Punctilioes and points of State, and Place, but remit and submit, as Occasions require and vary; those that doe not observe this, are a little too strait laced for Businesse, either Civill or Religious.

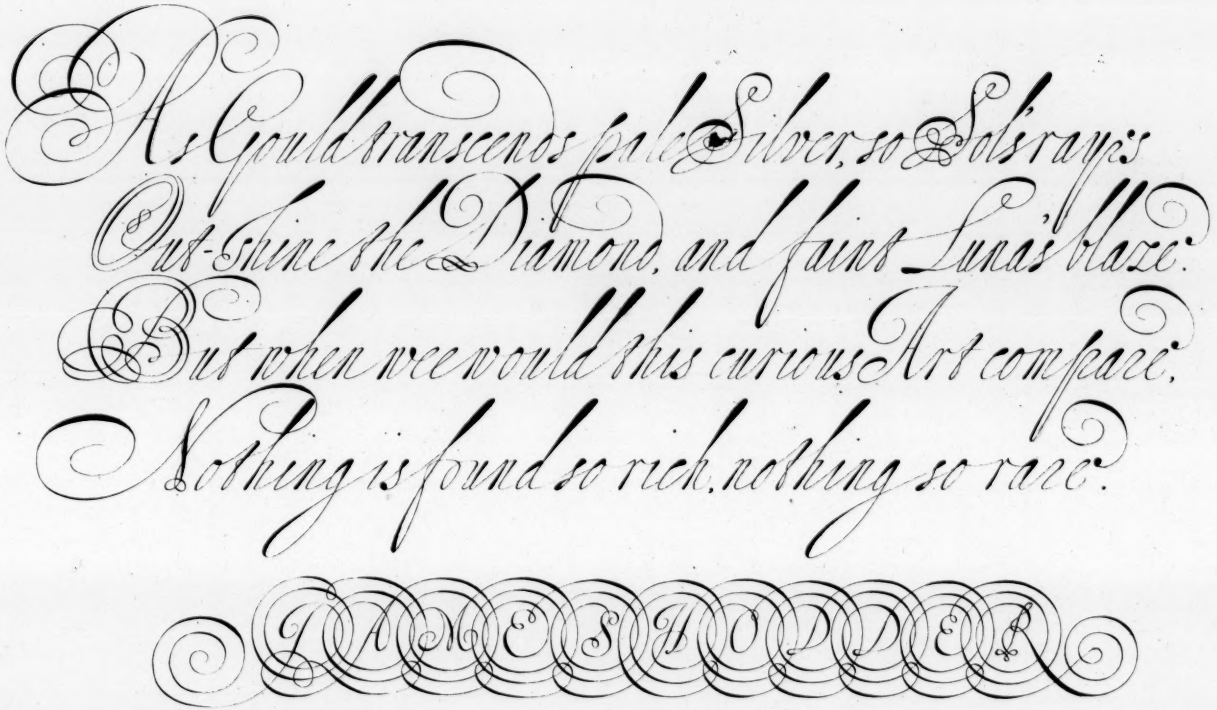
James Hodder.



A Gould transcends pale Silver, so Sols rays
Out-shine the Diamond, and faint Lunas blaze.
But when wee would this curious Art compare,
Nothing is found so rich, nothing so rare.

Or not my Hand accomplish'd this Design
Nor thanke my Parts in any part cou'd shine
Say rather 'twas that Divine Providence
Produced it, by a sacred Influence
